About Archway

Archway Defense has trained state, local, federal, and military personnel since 2014. Headquartered in Montana with instructors operating nationwide, the company specializes in high-level firearms, tactical, and personal-protection instruction delivered by a network of actively serving and veteran professionals from military, law enforcement, and counter-terrorism backgrounds. Archway Defense's programs include active-shooter response, patrol rifle and SWAT-specific training, situational awareness, and force-on-force simulation, and the company travels coast to coast to deliver curriculum tailored to the needs of the requesting agency.

The course will be led by lead instructor Peter Johnson, founder of Archway Defense. Prior to founding the company, Peter served five years as a Federal Air Marshal International Team Leader conducting counter-terror missions and surveillance internationally, where he earned "Top Gun" honors at the Federal Air Marshal Academy in 2010. Before that, Peter served six years in U.S. Air Force Air Base Defense with deployments supporting Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom. Archway Defense operates under the motto "With Training Comes Peace of Mind."
